

SHADOWS CAST OVER ELECTIONS

Senate Inquiry Uncovers
"Disregard for Laws and Some Frauds"

ALABAMA QUESTIONED

Violation "the Rule Rather than the Exception"

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—On findings of universal disregard for election laws, and circumstances indicating "some frauds, Chairman Hastings of the senate election subcommittee today formally questioned the validity of the Alabama election which sent John H. Bankhead to the senate.

The Republican senator from Delaware laid a bulky factual report without recommendations, before the committee as it gathered to permit counsel for Bankhead and the contestant, former Senator J. Thomas Heflin, to argue disputed points.

Outstanding conclusions of the report were:

That violations by election officials were the rule rather than the exception, and spread to every voting place examined.

That on the basis of ballots temporarily laid aside Hastings workers could not find that the election result would be altered, but other questionable ballots might change this.

That Bankhead spent $1,500 to $2,500 more than permitted by the Alabama law disqualifying candidates with expenditures over $10,000.

That exclusion of all improperly handled ballots would make determination of the wishes of the Alabama majority impossible.

That among the law violations by election officials were failure to number the ballots in ink; failure to roll and seal the ballots; breakage of seals on ballot boxes; voting of absentees as much as ten years out of state; voting by persons who did not pay their poll taxes until long after the legally specified time.

Opportunity for fraud, said Hastings, was ever present and the combination of circumstances "would satisfy a reasonable person that some fraud had been committed."

The chairman has indicated he would have some recommendations for the committee later, in closed session.

A move to deny a seat to Senator Bankhead when he presents himself at the senate door Monday, was under consideration today by Republican leaders.

FARM BOARD PROBE PRESSED IN SENATE

"I am not doing this in a critical sense," state the Nebraskan, who is a ranking member of the agriculture committee, "but a lot of things developed at the recent hearing of the board that ought to be gone into."

Norris also announced he would propose an inquiry into the administration by the Bureau of Internal Revenue of the tax laws applying to farmers cooperative organization. He said the Bureau has not been allowing tax exemptions to the cooperatives intended to be given them by Congress.

COUNTY RELIEF DRIVE NOT YET CLOSE TO GOAL

Canvass, Originally Set for 2 Hours, to Formally
Close Next Monday

Apparently the people of Fayette county do not feel possibilities of distress from unemployment this winter are as dark as pictured.

Elaborate plans made for the combined Red Cross Roll Call and community relief fund campaign have missed their mark. The general county relief committee, which brought together all relief agencies, both independent and tax supported, planned to make a concerted drive during a 2-hour period on Sunday, November 15, to raise all the funds to meet the possible needs during the year. The goal was set at $5,750 and was based on a survey made by the county organization. The two-hour drive was limited to the city and the rural canvass was given several days.

The amount raised at that time was less than $2,800. Now, three weeks after the drive started, the total is but $2,800, the treasurer reported Thursday afternoon.

Efforts to raise the money will formally end next Monday, it was said, and the money in the community relief purse at that time will be used to meet possible emergencies.

From now until the close of the drive, contributions or increases to donations already made will be accepted by any of the committee or the treasurer, R. Owen Harrison, at the First National Bank, the chairman announced.

Lima, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A landlady, said by police to be a former inmate of the Toledo state hospital for the insane, was being questioned today concerning the slaying last summer of Thelma Woods, 15, Lima, and Earle True, 20, Elida.

The man, 43 years old, was arrested yesterday on information supplied by his former landlady, who said she washed a blood-stained shirt for him the night after the killings. Dr. W. H. Vorbeau, superintendent of the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, questioned the man today. He denied he was in Lima at the time of the murders.

Truesdale and Miss Woods disappeared the night of May 30. After an extended search, their bodies were found weighted down in a stone quarry.

The woman who caused the latest arrest in the case said she had suspected the man for several months, but had been afraid to reveal her information.

PERFUME KING SUE BY WIFE FOR HELP

FRENCHMAN, M. F. COTY, HAD TO BORROW FROM BROTHER-IN-LAW TO GET START, IS CLAIM

Paris, Dec. 3.—(AP)—M. Francois Coty, noted Paris millionaire perfume manufacturer, a large part of whose fortune has come from sales of his products in the United States, faced today the prospect of having to pay an additional $5,200,000 to his former wife as compensation for her share in building up the business.

A Paris court issued the order. Mme. Coty divorced the manufacturer in 1929. They were married in 1900. He borrowed money from her brother and they opened a laboratory in which she also worked in order to keep the secret of the perfumes within the family.

Their fortune rose to nearly $35,000,000 by the time they were divorced and Madame Coty claimed half of it because there was no marriage contract. M. Coty paid her $12,000,000 and she claimed an additional $5,200,000.

When the order was handed down in the civil court yesterday M. Coty's attorney pleaded that the manufacturer did not have the money, asserting that the state of business in the United States had resulted in huge losses to his interests there.

LONGER TERM FOR SHERIFF IS PROPOSED

Amendment to Ohio Constitution to Be Offered in Next Legislature

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—An amendment to the Ohio constitution extending the term of office for sheriffs from two to four years will be proposed to the next General Assembly by the Buckeye State Sheriff's Association.

The association, which held its first annual convention here yesterday, voted to petition the Legislature to consider such an amendment which, it was pointed out, would abolish two primaries and two elections necessary under the present system of two-year terms.

Plans for linking the law enforcement agencies of the state through a state-wide radio, telephone and telegraph system, also were approved. The association authorized Opha Moore, secretary, to file applications with the Federal Radio Commission for the installation of five 500-watt radio stations, one each at Columbus, Dayton, Canton, Findlay and Marietta. These stations would be linked with county and municipal offices by telephone and telegraphic printer circuits.

Charles W. Cartmell, Springfield, was re-elected president of the association. Gus J. Miller, Wilmeton, and Walter Underwood, Mansfield, were elected first and second vice presidents, respectively. R. W. Oberlin, of Canton, was named a trustee.

FRANK COUNTS, EMBEZZLER
GET CHRISTMAS GIFT

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Charles A. Fromm, Canton, former Stark County Commissioner, was granted a parole from Ohio Penitentiary by the State Board of Pardons and Paroles. Fromm and Counts are to be released two days before Christmas. The Fromm case arose from an offer of a bribe to a Cleveland Company in connection with the Stark county building. Fromm appealed the jury verdict to the United States Supreme Court unsuccessfully.

Fromm and Counts were among the 28 penitentiary convicts granted paroles, the majority for release Dec. 23.

MINISTER KILLED BY ROBBERS' GUNS

CAUGHT IN CROSS FIRE OF BANDITS AND INTENDED
VICTIM IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Rev. Amos Oyer, 49, a tabernacle pastor, formerly of Lima, O., was shot dead last night when he was caught in the cross fire between bandits and a drug store owner.

The minister had stopped for a soda before going on to the Non-Sectarian Southwest Gospel Tabernacle, to hold the usual midweek prayer meeting. Stepping back from the counter, he was just about to walk out when two robbers entered and ordered him and the owner, Charles W. Kenny, to put up their hands.

Kenny, standing behind the prescription counter, seized a double-barreled shotgun and fired at the bandits. One of them fired, too.

The Rev. Mr. Oyer fell to the floor, dead.

With that the robbers fled.

A heathen is a man who doesn't know enough about religion to understand the fights.

Church Is Basis

LOW INTEREST URGED

Beauty and Utility to Be Confined

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—City neighborhood units—a grouping of single-family houses around schools, churches, and recreational centers—were held up today as a goal for America.

The committee on housing and the community of President Hoover's conference on home building and ownership urged that slums and blighted areas be eliminated and state legislation enacted to buy large tracts of land for development of the neighborhood unit.

The committee was one of 31 which today began the task set before them by Mr. Hoover of finding a way for Americans to purchase homes on easy terms and erect them upon new standards of adequacy and design.

"Home ownership," said the committee, headed by Dr. Joseph H. Pratt, of Boston, "tends to root citizenship, to build a man and his family into the community."

"So important is the acceptance of this goal," the committee continued "that every citizen of these United States should have as a background a home in a neighborhood where there is beauty, convenience and social opportunity; that somewhere in the education of every boy and girl stress should be laid on home ownership and its financing and management, city planning and zoning."

The committee said however, homes should be constructed with a view to preventing household accidents, fires and spread of disease. It blamed 35,000 deaths annually from accidents in the homes, and 70,000 deaths annually from fires.

WORLD TARIFF WAR BLAMED FOR SLUMP

WILSON'S SECRETARY OF WAR
BELIEVES HIGH SCHEDULES
UNBALANCE ECONOMICS

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in the Wilson cabinet, believes building of tariff barriers about a multitude of nations, each trying to be self sufficient, has created a state of economic "war" he said in an address here last night.

Speaking before the commonwealth and commercial clubs, Mr. Baker declared, "the world still is at war." He said since the principles of nationalism were set up at the Versailles conference and "the economic equilibrium of Europe disturbed, a war of tariffs and commercial competition has been in progress."

Adding he believed that without the consent of acquiescence of the United States, no world conflict could be undertaken.

"With this economic war in progress," he continued, "we ought to be thinking of how to organize the world to prevent the explosion of these menacing factors."

WAIVES JURY TRIAL ON LIQUOR CHARGE

San Jose, Cal., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A police judge, hearing the story of C. Van Ness Leavitt, brother-in-law of President Hoover, will decide whether or not Leavitt was guilty of a liquor law violation in "just helping a friend," by carrying 19 pints of liquor out of the back door of a local grocery.

Leavitt said he was a visitor in the store when some one told him raiders were coming and asked him to take the sack containing the bottles out of the rear door and hide them. An officer met Leavitt at the rear door.

Leavitt waived jury trial, placing the trial today in the hands of a police judge.

CHICAGO JUDGE SAYS MAN CAN PLAY POKER BUT MUST COME HOME SOBER EARLY

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A Chicago court has sanctioned Peter Dowd's poker playing—one night a week—but there's a catch to it.

Win, lose, or draw, he's got to start home at 11:45 p. m., and if he follows the advice of Judge Joseph Sabath he will take an alarm clock with him.

In addition the court specified that Peter would have to be reasonable about any refreshments he may indulge in during his one night out.

The provisions were fixed by the court yesterday in effecting a reconciliation between Dowd and his wife, Victoria, who had sued for separate maintenance. Peter said he wanted some rights.

"You'll have them," said the judge, "but do as I say. No drinking, except three little ones on you, night out each week. You may do what you want for amusement, which probably means playing poker, but you must be home at midnight, so buy an alarm clock and have it ring at 11:45. Then leave."

Everybody agreed, including Peter, who said this was "more than I ever had before."

WOMAN CONFESSES MURDER ATTEMPT

VICTIM PREVIOUSLY SAID WOUNDS INFLECTED IN SUICIDE EFFORT

San Francisco, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Augusta B. Johnson, 25, attractive artist's model, was charged today with assault with a deadly weapon on the basis of her confession, police said, that she slashed the throat of Robert A. Lockwood, Los Angeles architectural artist, in his studio here.

Authorities related she said she cut the artist with a razor blade because he lied to her.

Lockwood, recovering in a hospital, told authorities he had attempted suicide and when confronted with the girl's asserted confession said he would not prosecute her.

The girl, who said she has a husband, Lloyd Johnson, and two children at Culver City, Calif., told police she had been intending to kill Lockwood for three days.

At the hospital Lockwood said the model was just a friend who was out of work and that he had tried to aid her.

BANKER IS ARRESTED FOR FRAUD

Vice-President of Akron
First Central Trust Co.
Faces Embezzlement

$80,000 IS THE COUNT

Prosecution Launched in Federal Court

Cleveland, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A warrant was issued in federal court here today for the arrest of William J. Roaf, vice-president of the First Central Trust Company of Akron, charging him with embezzling $80,000 of the bank's funds.

Harry Williams, president of the bank said the shortage incurred by Roaf's alleged embezzlement would amount to $460,000.

A short while later the warrant was issued. Roaf was arrested in his room at the Hollenden hotel.

Williams said there will be no loss to the institution or its depositors as the alleged defalcation is amply covered by insurance. Williams said that "on the basis of Roaf's own admission" the case will be prosecuted immediately.

The First Central Trust Company, an institution with $75,000,000 resources, was formed last month by merging of the First City Trust and Savings Bank and Central Depositors Bank and Trust Company.

The alleged shortage was turned up Sunday in the course of combining and reorganizing the recently consolidated institution. George De Camp, governor of the Fourth Federal Reserve District was immediately notified at Cleveland.

Roaf, a banker here for over a score of years, was first connected with the old Akron Trust Company, which merged with Central Savings Bank to form Central Savings and Trust Company. He became treasurer and then executive vice president and retained this last post in the merger that produced Central Depositors Bank and Trust Company.

Roaf is president of the Portage Country Club, oldest and most exclusive golf organization here, and treasurer of half a dozen local realty development concerns. He was divorced last June by Mrs. Donna Roaf, who was awarded custody of their minor child, Donna Patricia, 11. An older daughter, Mrs. Harold Capron, is a student at the University of Michigan, where her husband is also enrolled.

Williams refused to go into detail as to what manner the amount was alleged to have been embezzled.

Roaf was arrested by Assistant District Attorney William J. McDermott and Deputy Marshall John Gibson.

The banker apparently expected the officers, they said, and immediately went to the United States marshal's office.

CALLED IN MINE DISORDER
TRIAL BUT ARE EVICTED
FROM BOARDING HOUSE

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Dec. 3.—(AP)—More than 25 defense witnesses here for the trial of W. B. Jones, Harlan county mine union leader charged with murder, are faced with the prospect of making their way to their homes 250 miles away with no funds to pay their transportation.

After more than 100 defense witnesses were evicted from their boarding houses last night because their bills were unpaid the commonwealth agreed to pay the expenses of 75 of them when the defense staff said they had no money to support them while here. After this announcement, the boarding house decided to keep all of them, one more night.

When forty-five of them said they had no supper last night, James Price, Chicago, representing the National Defense Committee said his organization would feed them. The agreement of state's attorneys to bear expenses of the 75 was approved by Assistant Attorney General Sam H. Brown.

CHRISTMAS MENU OF OHIO CONVICTS

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Christmas dinner for prisoners in Ohio penitentiary this year will cost approximately $800, of that amount, the taxpayers will pay $600. The difference will be in produce raised on the state prison farm.

Thomas today said the meal—roast loin or pork, oyster dressing, gravy, candied sweet potatoes, bread, butter and coffee, would cost the state approximately 17 cents a man, as against 14 to 15 cents in previous years. The prisoners will be allowed to purchase candy and peanuts to supplement the meal.

ST LAWRENCE WATERWAY PROJECT IS VIEWED OPTIMISTICALLY

Ohio Governor Believes "Neighborly Concord" Spells Success

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Completion of the St. Lawrence waterway through international agreement was termed the logical outcome of the policy of neighborly concord pursued by the United States and Canada, by Governor George White of Ohio in addressing the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence tidewater association here today.

The governor declared the chain of Great Lakes forms the natural basis for every system of transportation in middle-west, but "thus far, its utility has been essentially local to America. Deep water transportation to harbors beyond the sea has been broken by obstacles in the channel of the St. Lawrence."

"In a world suffering from the tragic results of national animosities and discords there comes to us this opportunity to demonstrate the benefits of international co-operation. In behalf of the people of Ohio, I join with our neighboring states and with our brethren from Canada in bespeaking the early consummation of this beneficent undertaking."

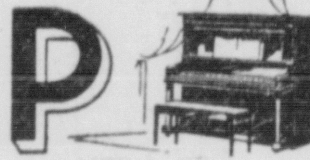

Gov. Harry G. Leslie of Indiana the development of the great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway is absolutely necessary to the future of the middle-west.

FRENZIED REFORM LEADER HELD FOR SHOOTING BOY

Harassed by the accusation of having shot a 17-year-old boy in a frenzy of drunkenness, Daniel Gilday, 65-year-old president of the Englewood, Ill., Law and Order League, has been held by Chicago police as state authorities seek an indictment against him for assault with intent to kill. Police say Gilday, intoxicated, shot Herman Knol in the stomach when the boy sought to help him home. Gilday stated he thought he was being held up, but admitted being drunk, police say. Gilday, for years an active civic reform leader, is shown at left, following his arrest; right is young Knol, in a serious condition, with A. E. Paul, superintendent of the hospital looking on.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Daniel Gilday, officer of the Englewood Law and Order League, was held today pending the outcome of an abdominal wound witness said he inflicted upon Herman Knol, 17.

Gilday alleged shot Knol when the youth and his companion, Herman Alkema, 18, paused Sunday evening to offer their services to him. Alkema claimed he and Knol believed Gilday was intoxicated, the Law and Order League official explained the affair by asserting that he believed Alkema and Knol were holding him up, and that he fired in self defense.

If the youth dies, Assistant State's Attorney Mal Goughland said Gilday will be charged with murder and the state will demand the death sentence. If Knol lives, however, Goughland said Gilday would be charged with assault with intent to kill, with an additional charge of carrying concealed weapons. The first charge invokes a penalty of 1 to 14 years.

The prisoner's attorney said that he would attempt to free him today on charges of habeas corpus proceedings.

LABOR AND CAPITAL SEEK TO UNIONIZE HOSIERY INDUSTRY

Exemption from Trust Laws Asked by Labor for Employers

Philadelphia, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A new plan in which labor and capital jointly seek to unionize the $100,000,000 full-fashioned hosiery industry, and in which labor seeks exemption for its employers from the anti-trust laws, was explained today by John W. Edelman, research director of the hosiery union.

The plan has been in operation two months. The union workers have voluntarily accepted wage reductions of about 50 per cent. Mr. Edelman said, and the Union mills have cut prices about 20 per cent to meet competition.

He said the plan has brought about unionization of 45 per cent of the industry's 300 plants, whereas but 30 per cent were organized two months ago. Virtually all union plants, are now working full time.

In some instances, they were operating as low as 20 per cent of capacity before the plan took effect. Other industries, likewise troubled by surplus and non-profit production, have begun to inquire into the plan, which, its adherents think, may point the way not only to elimination of labor troubles but to business stabilization—with labor taking the initiative—and without infringing on anti-trust laws.

HEALTH SEAL POSTER ON BIG SIGN BOARD

The big sign board which was erected on the courthouse lawn during the Legion membership campaign in November, and which bore the names of all members obtained in the campaign, later was used by the Red Cross in the annual roll call, with lettering and design done by Floyd Tracey, artist-sign painter, is now doing duty for the Christmas Health Seal Sale.

Emblazoned on the board is a huge replica of the 1931 seal, in colors.

After the Health Seal campaign ends Christmas eve, the board will be dismantled.

HAND MANGLED BY A SHOTGUN

Robert, Son of Rev. and Mrs. Goddard, Loses Right Hand

Robert Goddard, 20, son of Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Goddard, of this city, had his right hand so badly mangled by the accidental discharge of a shotgun while hunting on his grandfather's farm six miles east of Cambridge, Thursday forenoon that amputation of the hand was necessary when he was removed to a Zanesville hospital.

Robert was hunting alone at the time, and tripped on a steep hillside, falling in such a way that the shotgun was discharged and part of his right hand carried away.

Regardless of the pain, shock and loss of blood, he kept his presence of mind and twisted a handkerchief about his wrist to stay the flow of blood until he could reach assistance.

He then walked to a point not far distant where some men were at work, and they rushed him to a Cambridge physician, who dressed the wound temporarily and hurried him to a Zanesville hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the hand.

Rev. Goddard, who is pastor of the Church of Christ in this city, received a telephone message of the accident and with Mrs. Goddard, left for Zanesville Thursday afternoon.

Robert is well known among the younger set in this city, and popular with an unusually wide circle of friends. He had been visiting his grandfather, S. W. Sheridan, and was hunting on his farm when the accident took place.

HOME OWNERSHIP PLAN WOULD GET AID FROM GOVERNMENT to defects in construction and arrangement.

Close attention was urged to the size of rooms and number of persons per room. Recommendation was made for strict regulations to prohibit overcrowding to prevent spread of disease.

The committee found "delinquency is concentrated in the area of bad housing and is associated with a complex of conditions, of which bad housing is only one."

President Mr. Hoover gave the keynote to the thousand delegates he welcomed to the conference on home building and owner. They settled today to work on more than 30 reports of experts which have been in preparation during the past year.

The essential of the Hoover design for the conference is that purchase of a home for his family shall be made possible to the average man on much the same basis that he acquires a car, a radio, or a fur coat for his wife.

The President seeks to do away with the expensive financing now forced upon people of limited means. Though they have little cash and their principal asset is a job and good character, they should have available to them financing that would "dignify the name credit", and do away with "terms and risks comparable to the credit extended by a pawnbroker."

KNITTING BOOMS IN AUSTRALIA AS SLUMP'S RESULT

Canberra, Australia.—(AP)—Remarkable revival of needlework and knitting is reported throughout Australia.

Shopkeepers' sales of needles, knitting and sewing yarns and other needle work materials during the past few months have been unprecedented.

It is a result of the depression. Reduced incomes have necessitated household and clothing economies. Daughters now out of employment cannot sit idly at home, so they get busy with knitting needles.

Then there is the greater need and more urgent appeals by benevolent societies, and many a commuter spends traveling time each day in making garments for the needy.

All this female industry is having another effect, too. There has been an amazing slump in the price of women's wear and several old established businesses that dealt in rich goods have failed.

THE marriage of Robert Cannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cannon, of Jeffersonville, and Miss Pauline Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Allen, of West Lancaster, was solemnized Wednesday afternoon, December second, and elicited both interest and felicitations from a wide acquaintance and friendship throughout the county. The ceremony was performed at half past two o'clock by Reverend George Weaver, former Methodist Episcopal pastor at Jeffersonville, at his home in South Salem. The bridegroom's sister, Miss Dorothy Cannon, and Kenneth Rittenour, witnessed the ring service.

The bride, an extremely pretty brunette, was dressed in brown for her marriage, her frock, hat, cloak, slippers and accessories all of matching shades. She was graduated from Jeffersonville High School in the class of 1930.

Mr. Cannon, who, as well as the bride, belongs to a leading family of Jefferson township, was also graduated from the Jeffersonville High School. Following his graduation, he studied at Miami University and is now engaged with his father in farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Cannon are taking a short motoring trip and upon their return will divide their time between the parents until March first, when they will establish their own home.

Miss Nel Mark was hostess to her bridge club, Wednesday, for a luncheon entertained at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Eliza Waddell and Mrs. Oscar A. Wikle. The table, laid with a Cluny lace luncheon set, was centered with a large crystal basket of yellow pompons and button chrysanthemums and asparagus fern.

The afternoon's contract bridge game was spirited and trophies for high score were won at each table by Mrs. Willard H. Perrill and Mrs. Richard W. Willis.

Mrs. Howard S. Harper and Mrs. Bradley E. Johnson were guests with the club members.

A kitchen shower was held in connection with the meeting and added much needed equipment to the culinary department of the church.

At 1:30 p. m., the Woman's Foreign Society assembled in the parlors, with Mrs. Frank E. Haines, president presiding. Mrs. W. T. Blume, Mrs. Ella Thompson and Mrs. Scott Hopkins gave echoes of the executive meeting held at Lancaster recently. Mrs. Ethel Caviness was welcomed as a new member.

LIVING AND LOVING

BY VIRGINIA LEB

IF PUNS are the lowest form of humor, as it is said, anonymous letters are certainly the very lowest form of correspondence.

The great trouble with an anonymous letter is that no matter how the recipient despises it and the sender, it cannot help breed distrust in his or her mind. No one who receives one can put it quite out of their heart and feel the same confidence in the person whose goodness or sincerity is questioned in the missive.

HIGH SCHOOL AGE: I think it would be wise to tell the boy friend about the letters and ask him to be perfectly frank if he really feels the way they say he does. Tell him that you haven't taken the letters seriously, but just the same you cannot help feeling that you would like to have him contradict the statements made therein, so as to rid your mind of any doubts they may have created.

Or, if you don't want him to know about the letters, impress on his mind that you rely on him to let you know any time he has any objection to taking you anywhere, and you will do the same if your feelings change toward him.

TRUE BLUE: I am so glad you surmounted all your troubles and have your three fine children to love you and to work for. Money doesn't mean much when the heart is troubled, does it?

PUZZLED GIRLS: I wish you had given me more time to answer your letter, girls. I am afraid this answer is altogether too late. I hope you went in informal frocks to the banquet, as long as the boys were not wearing dress clothes.

Dear Diary

By ETHELDA BEDFORD

THURSDAY NIGHT.

DEAR DIARY: Once when I asked Nate why he wanted to kiss me he gave a fairly simple answer.

"Why do I want to kiss you?" he repeated, as we sat out in his car in front of my boarding house.

"Yes—there must be a reason," I answered.

(Diary, I suppose every girl has tried that little trick on some man at some time . . . but, I'd just like to know how many times it has worked out the way she hoped it would. Why? The answer I almost wanted, and the answer I almost prayed to receive from Nate, is—"Because I love you.")

But—"You have such a pretty mouth," was the simple answer.

There in the library of his penthouse when I asked this old often-repeated question he evaded me.

Then he asked me: "Why he so accurate?"

"Accusative?" "Yes—you said I'd had to many drinks . . . you accused me of not caring enough really to kiss you . . . you accused me of having other girls telephone my place here . . . you accused yourself of being silly to suppose that no other girl telephoned me—"

"Oh, I—"

"Don't interrupt. You have to learn. You need to understand—Understand that you must have your facts . . ."

"Facts?"

"Who are you, to judge the number of drinks I should have—the degree of my affection for you . . . I cannot judge that myself . . . how much I care for you . . . you won't allow me to—to care."

"You're wrong, there."

"There you go. Wrong . . ."

Diary, it was the nearest thing to a real quarrel I ever have had with Nate . . . and never have I felt so beaten. He out-thought me. I didn't know what to say . . . what defense could I offer? What could I say to disprove what he said? What would be the point of disproving his say?

My mind whirled. My heart fluttered. My head was dizzy . . . oh, I didn't want him to be peeved, I wanted his arms about me . . . to steady me . . . to hold me against his shoulder . . . I wanted to cry. But, I couldn't manage a word . . . I looked into his eyes . . . I felt very cold . . .

"Don't become possessive," he said. "It doesn't become a girl as lovely as you are."

PROSECUTOR DENIES PARDON FOR MOONEY ENDORSED BY HIM

Letter Written in Walker's Hotel Suite Called "Unfortunate"

San Francisco, Dec. 3.—(P)—En route to Santa Barbara, where he will "spend several days soaking up sunshine," Mayor James J. Walker of New York left behind him today a controversy which resulted from his plea for a pardon for Tom Mooney, convicted of bombing the San Francisco postoffice day parade in 1916.

The discussion centered about the letter signed by Mooney's prosecutor, District Attorney Charles M. Fickert, in it Fickert had said that "in my opinion you are probably right in maintaining that it would be to the best interest of the state that executive clemency be granted to Mooney."

The letter was written in Walker's suite at a local hotel. The Mayor read it during his pardon plea before Governor Rolph and when it was heralded as an endorsement by Fickert of a pardon for Mooney the former District Attorney declared that it could not be construed to mean that he personally was seeking executive clemency for Mooney.

In Los Angeles Fickert issued a statement in which he termed the wording of the letter "unfortunate" and said he had not changed his opinion that Mooney is guilty as convicted. He said the letter had been written hastily.

VALUABLE CATTLE DIE IN BARN FIRE

Elyria, O.—(P)—Twenty head of registered Holstein cattle were killed early Thursday when fire destroyed a barn on the farm of E. L. Pierce, 10 miles west of here. In addition, 100 tons of hay, a large amount of grain, an automobile and much farm machinery were burned.

Pierce said the cattle were very valuable. Only five head were saved. The total insurance was $4,000. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

EPIDEMIC FEARED IN FEDERAL PRISON

Atlanta, Ga.—(P)—Atlanta federal prison has been placed under a precautionary routine to prevent spread of spinal meningitis, seven cases of which have broken out since Nov. 8.

Warden A. C. Adenhold said no additional prisoners are being sent to the prison and that public health service physicians are working with doctors of the prison staff to control the spread of the disease.

'Electric Eye' Gets Job Sorting Coffee Beans

Hamburg.—(P)—German scientists have found the electric eye useful to sort coffee beans according to their color-shades.

The beans are placed on a belt and pass through a pencil of light rays which are directed on a photo-cell. The amount of light reflected by the bean differing according to its shade, is transformed by that cell into an electric current.

This current is adjusted to react only on the light colored beans. When one of them come along it starts an arm which sweeps the bean off the belt before it reaches the collecting basin.

WOMAN IS KILLED BY JILTED LOVER

Flemingsburg, Ky., Dec. 3.—(P)—Mrs. Ethel Yates Hunter, 35, was shot and killed on a down town street here today by James T. Williamson, a widow about 60 years old, who then shot and wounded himself.

Williamson had borrowed a shotgun a short time before the hardware store and one load went through the woman's body near the heart. She died half an hour later. He then returned the weapon and went to his room where he shot himself through the mouth with a pistol. Physicians said he had a chance to recover and he was ordered taken to a hospital at Lexington, meantime he was held under guard.

Mrs. Hunter and her husband, Ira Hunter, had conducted a restaurant here for about a year. Police were told Williamson frequently ate there and that last night he was seen in the restaurant laughing and talking to Mrs. Hunter and her husband and their son, Marion, 13 years.

FORGETFUL WITNESS HELD FOR PERJURY

Cleveland, O., Dec. 3.—(P)—Paul Brown, Canton, who last week said only "I don't remember" when called as a witness in the trial of three Canton men alleged to have conspired to protect a liquor racket, was held to the Federal grand jury today on perjury bond was set at $5,000.

Brown was searched after leaving the courtroom when a department of justice received a rumor that he had been given $500, but no money was found. He had been called as a government witness in the second trial of Ellis Darny, Mike Smith and John Gust on conspiracy charges. Darny, a former police sergeant, and Smith, were acquitted on directed verdicts for lack of evidence, and the jury disagreed in Gust's case.

MARKETS and FINANCIAL NEWS

DAY'S ACTIVITIES IN WALL STREET

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER

New York, Dec. 3.—(P)—Pressure lifted from financial markets today, and some recovery was accomplished, but trading turned dull.

The stock market's stubborn resistance to breaking through the bear market bottom of early October, together with vague rumors that a constructive announcement might be forthcoming from Washington, prompted considerable short covering.

After recovering from the first shock of the Wabash receivership, Wall street took a more hopeful view of the railroad situation. Prominent bankers said the plight of a few of the so-called feeder lines should not be taken as an indication of the railroad situation generally.

Leading carriers in need of funds are said to be receiving support from important banking interests. It was pointed out in banking quarters, however, that such aid could not be expected indefinitely, and that reduction of operating costs, presumably through cutting wages, appeared imperative.

The 10 per cent wage reduction advocated by the Canadian board of collection has been viewed by railway bankers as a hopeful sign. "Watch the Canadian case" has been a widely circulated tip in Wall Street.

The weekly bank statement showed a rather sharp drop in the Bank of England's reserve ratio, which fell 5 points to a new low of 28.4 per cent, but this was due primarily to a gain of £4,000,000 in circulation, necessitated by the Dec. 1 settlements. There have been some rumors of official support for sterling exchange in the last day or two, but confirmation has been lacking.

The New York market was virtually unchanged.

price, the market will not get away from them.

This is the hog situation in brief: the prospect is hazy, but it is doubtful if price control will be relaxed until the bulk of the hog crop has been sent into consumptive channels or storage. In any event, the swine grower holds the small end of the stick. I look for plenty of hogs this side of February if not until March.

SHEEP—On a basis of investment, cost and feed prices, feeders must get at least $6 for fat lambs to avoid losing money. The last dip put the Chicago market on a $5.75 to $6 basis, which tells the story of present conditions.

A full crop of lambs is in feeders' hands and a majority is anxious to cash. Occasional spurts will put prices up 25c to 50c per cwt., inviting another period of excessive runs. Passage of the game and poultry season, with lower temperatures might stimulate trade, but two outstanding facts must not be overlooked; the residue of the largest lamb crop the country ever raised must go into consumption this side of next April, and lambs in preparation are in weak hands. Pelts are worth little; by-product is in similar condition, consequently meat must carry the load. With a full house at the markets, killers will have their way regarding price. So far as the December and January period is concerned the price prospect is far from encouraging.

We quote the following prices from our sale of Dec. 2, 1931.

Cattle—Receipts, 75 head; top steers and heifers $7.20; good steers and heifers $6.40; medium steers and heifers $5.60; common steers and heifers $5.00; low grade steers and heifers $3.40; top cows $3.70; common cows $2.50; cull and common $1.75; heavy bulls $3.70; light bulls $4.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS SUMMARY

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(P)—Developments pointing to eclipse of Russia as a bearish influence on wheat gave encouragement today to speculators hopeful of a rise in prices. For the first time this season, Russia's export clearance of wheat dropped under those of last year. There was also a revival of reports that Russia had been buying Australian wheat. Newly harvested southern hemisphere wheat was reported as offered abroad at a discount under United States hard winter.

Wheat closed firm, 1/4 to 3/4 cents higher than yesterday's finish, corn unchanged to 1/2c lower, oats 1/4 to 1/2c up, and provisions 2 to 7 cents down.

Rallies in wheat resulted from advices that Russia was cancelling many forward contracts. Russia was very short of wheat, and that Europe was much underbought. Black Sea shipments of wheat this week, 2,008,000 bushels, were smaller than either last week or last year, with Russia's total 984,000. On the other hand, announcement that British millers had proposed a general tariff of about 9 cents a bushel on foreign wheat tended to curb speculative buyers here.

On the upturn due to Russian news, however, the wheat market rose to well above yesterday's finish. With numerous commission houses as well as various professional traders switching to the bull side, offerings were light on the way up. Profit taking sales, together with relative smallness of overnight North American export business, checked the advance. Corn and oats were relatively weak, owing to ideal weather over the corn belt.

Provisions lacked support.

HERE'S ENCOURAGEMENT IN BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Cleveland Reserve Bank Report Shows Decrease in Money Hoarding

Cleveland, Dec. 3.—(AP)—An outstanding development in Ohio business and industry during November was the beginning of a decline in money-hoarding, revealed today in the monthly survey of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland.

In the fourth Federal Reserve district, which includes Ohio, Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Kentucky and a part of West Virginia, for the week ending Nov. 13, money-hoarding decreased $4,000,000, as shown by the circulation of Federal Reserve notes. The total amount held by banks and individuals however, remain much larger than a year ago.

The bank noted a "better feeling" throughout the district and attributed it partly to an improved banking situation, an upward movement of some commodity prices.

A survey of the iron and steel industrial outlook for particularly encouraging.

After reducing operations to 27 per cent of capacity, output of the steel mills was increased to 31 per cent by the third week of November.

The survey showed dealers stocks of automobiles have been reduced in numbers, and that the entire industry is on the eve of reopening factory production on the normally high basis that always accompanies the introduction of new models.

Rubber tire production has been experiencing its usual seasonal decline, but producers feel a real tire shortage is gradually developing. The belief is based on gasoline consumption figures, indicating that cars are being operated at a greater rate than in other recent years.

Warm weather late this fall helped the farmers in this section as estimates were raised for harvests of late crops.

The weather was blamed however for unsatisfactory business in the textile, clothing, and the coal mining industries.

Output of coal mines in this district in October was nine per cent above September, compared with an 14 per cent increase in other years.

Retail sales of clothing were 20 to 25 per cent below the fall of 1930, in shoes, the decrease was close to 28 per cent.

FIRST LETTERS TO SANTA CLAUS

Santa Claus' little friends in Fayette county are looking forward with eager anticipation to the coming of the jolly old fellow, and are beginning to make their wants known in letters directed to him in care of The Herald.

The first two letters to Santa arrived Thursday morning, coming from Anna Lois and Mary Alice Foster, of Bloomingburg. Apparently they have written to Santa before, and know the rule that they must write on only one side of the paper, and just as plainly as they can, so there can be no mistake in transmitting message to Old St. Nick.

Here are the letters:

$3,600,000 Contract for Trucks Puts 1,000 Men Back at Work

Cleveland, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—More business brightness — $3,600,000 worth of them — came out of Ohio today.

The White Motor Company here received a contract for 774 heavy dump trucks. The order is the largest White has received since the boom days of the war and is worth approximately $2,600,000.

One thousand men will go to work in the next two weeks at the Lorain yards of the American Shipbuilding Company, which will convert three lake ore carriers of Boland and Cornelius, Buffalo steamship operators, into self unloaders. The job will cost $1,000,000.

President A. G. Bean, of White motor said the order would not mean employment of additional men, but would enable 3,000 employees now working under the Stagger system to put in full time. Deliveries are to be completed in four months.

About four months, time and approximately 3,000 tons of steel will be required to convert the steamers William T. Roberts, Theodore H. Wickwire Jr., and Louis R. Davidson.

At East Liverpool, F. H. Johnson, now president of the Smith-Phillips China Company, announced its seven-kiln plant will resume operations about February 1, after an idleness of two years, giving employment to 60 persons.

The John Douglas Company, Cincinnati manufacturers of plumbing supplies, contracted to manufacture 5,000 fixtures for the new Rikers Island Penitentiary, New York. Other orders make prospects brighter for the first quarter than a year ago, the company announced.

FILES COURT ACTION TO BREAK WIFE'S WILL

Columbus, Dec. 3.—Charles S. Barnes, Washington C. H., in a suit filed in the Franklin county common pleas court Wednesday, asks the court to make him life tenant and beneficiary of the estimated $40,000 estate of his late wife, Mrs. Anna Taylor Barnes, which he charges, she failed to do in her will in violation of an agreement made between them.

Barnes claims that on Dec. 10, 1929 they agreed to make separate wills, each naming the other life tenant and beneficiary of the others estate. He made such a will, he said. They were married January 4, 1930.

When the will of Mrs. Barnes was probated last May, it gave him only a life interest in a third of the notes, bonds, and credits of her estate, he says, and the remainder to a niece, Dorothy Lowe Roman, and nephew, Clifford D. Lowe, of Washington.

The will of Mrs. Barnes charges that her husband had violated the provisions of the agreement with her by reserving her.

CHARGE ROBBERY

Gallipolis, Ohio.—(AP)—Charged with robbing the postoffice and a store at Robertsburg, W. Va., Chancey Runyon, 31, and Cecil Glover, 18, both of Gallipolis, were arrested Wednesday by West Virginia and Ohio officers.

Keeps Her Word

A grin of triumph wreathes the pretty face of Miss Mamie Johnson of Wichita, Kas. Last spring she assured her chum, Miss Josephine Bell, that she would attend her wedding "if she had to go in an ambulance and look on from a stretcher." And that's just what she did! With her fractured hip in a cast, the result of a fall from a horse last summer, Miss Johnson called an ambulance and observed the ceremony from a stretcher.

PROBATE COURT PROCEEDINGS

Certificate of journal and docket entries from the common pleas court in the matter of the estate of R. C. Hunt. Demurrer and amendment overruled to which ruling M. S. Daugherty, as executor, excepts.

Court finds in first account of Chas. R. McLean and Lida M. Hunt, as executors, charges were made in the lump sums for payment on principal and interest, and in claiming credits a part of them should be charged to the trust estate and a part to the administration of the estate, and that it was the duty of the surviving executor to make a proper separation of the items, and that this duty devolves upon her executor. That said accounts as filed do not show the condition of or standing of the trust estate.

The court finds that trustees are properly chargeable with the value of the property as shown by the inventory and appraisal the sum of $32,707.80 and that two settlements, one for $1017.45 and one for $65 should be added to the sum.

Court finds balance in the estate of R. C. Hunt due to the beneficiaries under the will of $12,580.88. That the amount should draw interest from March 4, 1928. It is ordered that M. S. Daugherty, as executor pay and distribute to beneficiaries, sum of $12,580.88, together with interest.

Darnel E. Whitaker qualifies as administrator of the estate of Granville M. Whitaker, furnishing bond in sum of $1500.

Noah Staut vs. Nellie Staut—temporary alimony in sum of $5 week allowed defendant during pendency of action.

Grover C. Tobin named administrator of Orlando Tobin. Bond $2500.

Will of Jennie Miller filed for Probate.

INDIAN OIL QUEEN MUST PAY!

Court Holds Law Saves Osaage Husband from Paying Alimony to Chauffeur-Husband However

Los Angeles, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Charles J. Chalette, chauffeur, who married his employer, Elizabeth McAllister, Osaage Indian oil heiress, cannot collect alimony from her, but he is entitled to divorce expenses.

Superior Judge Dudley Valentine ruled that California law makes no provision for a man to collect alimony even though a wife has an estimated income of $150,000 yearly, as reported in Mrs. Chalette's case.

The judge, however, ordered Mrs. Chalette to pay her husband $3,750 as a defense fund in the divorce action she has instituted.

Chalette married Miss McAllister last September. At that time he said he had $165. He reported his present assets at $32.

Chalette admitted his wife gave him various sums, promising him $10,000 yearly as spending money. The former chauffeur testified, however, that most of the money she gave him is in escrow in real estate deals and attached by her.

Mrs. Chalette instituted divorce proceedings after approximately two months of wedded life. She charged her husband with cruelty and asserted he had married her for her money.

WOMEN IN CONGRESS HOLD SPOTLIGHT

Bloc of Six in House of Representatives Could Exert Great Power and Control Legislation With Party Majority So Close, but Washington Considers Such Action Unlikely.

The six feminine members of the national house of representatives.

By BONITA WITT

Washington.—As the new congress gets ready to convene, on Dec. 7, the women hold the center of the stage. Six women members of congress are being discussed daily, over the tea cups and dinner tables, by politically minded folk, who wonder just what use these six legislators will make of the power which is within their grasp.

With Republicans and Democrats so nearly divided into equal groups these six women, or any four of them, can wield the balance of power if they so desire. Will they care to exercise their new-found power to upset the apple cart? That is the question which Washington is asking now, and the answer, at present, at least, is "It is most unlikely that they will."

FEMINIST BLOC?

During their terms this sextet has rigidly adhered to party lines and political observers see no reason why this should not continue to be the rule. Yet, if these six women should take it upon themselves to form a feminist bloc, they could completely control legislation in the lower house during the coming season.

"But they won't!" those who know their congress say. They point out that the women (three Republicans and three Democrats) have shown no more tendency to break down party lines than their conservative male colleagues, and even the thrill of holding the balance of power is not likely to render them rebellious to party dictates.

Here's the list of feminine representatives causing so much speculation around the capitol:

Mrs. Mary T. Norton, first woman ever elected as a Democrat. Elected on her own, in 1924, from Jersey City, N. J., and not as her husband's successor. She knows her way about politically and is noted for making effective speeches. She is considered a very regular Democrat and very wet. She is a member of the labor committee and senior member but one of the District of Columbia committee. This year she probably will be chairman of the committee, which means that Mrs. Norton will be "Mayor" of Washington.

Mrs. Florence P. Kahn, Republican, from California, was elected on both tickets, in 1925, to succeed her husband. During the years he was congressman she was nearly as active as he. She retains his interest in military affairs. He was war-time chairman of the military affairs committee of the same committee. She is beginning her fourth term and is dripping wet. Mrs. Kahn was the first woman ever to preside as speaker of the house.

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Republican, from Lowell, Mass., elected to succeed her husband, in June, 1925. During the war she was a Red Cross worker overseas and from 1918-1922 did Red Cross work for Walter Reed hospital, in Washington. Coming from an industrial community, she is well informed on industrial affairs. She doesn't make speeches, but her work on economic questions is considered effective.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Florida Democrat and daughter of the late William Jennings Bryan, was first elected Nov. 6, 1928. She served as a nurse in the British Egypt-Palestine campaign during the World war. She takes an active part in congressional matters.

Mrs. Ruth Pratt, New York Republican, is beginning her second term. She is a wet from a "Blue Stocking" district. She doesn't make speeches, but holds a place on the important banking and currency committee.

Mrs. Effie Gene Wingo, widow of Democratic Congressman Otis T. Wingo, from De Queen, Ark., is newest member of the contingent. She was elected Nov. 4, 1928, and served only three months before congress adjourned. In the senate she has a feminine colleague from Arkansas, Mrs. Hattie Caraway, who has been appointed to succeed her husband, the late Thaddeus H. Caraway.

TRUCKING COAL FROM THE MINES

The practice of trucking coal from mines in Jackson, Hocking, Athens and other counties, to and beyond this city, which has been under way for sometime, is increasing, and many trucks are now engaged in the work of hauling.

It seems that the trucks obtain the coal at the wagon mines for a comparatively small price, and haul it 50 to 150 miles, delivering it at a profit.

Observers declare that in this manner the railroads are losing a yearly tonnage of coal which is being moved over the highway instead of the railroads.

Some of the coal comes to this city, but most of it that is being trucked, passes through to other points.

PRINCE OF PEACE CONTEST SUNDAY

The Fayette County Prince of Peace contest will be held at the Church of Christ, next Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. There are two contestants, Bert Shup from the First Presbyterian church, and Cloyd Richardson, from Grace M. E. Church. The contest is followed with a great deal of interest and a large attendance is expected.

Jeff Smith, Waynesboro, O., butcher shop owner, has been robbed 18 times in nine years in business.

HICCOUGH VICTIM GETS SOME MAIL

More than 10,000 persons in all parts of the country have sent suggestions and home remedies by telegram and letter to Ira King, Mansfield, O., garage owner, who has been afflicted with a long siege of hiccoughs. A messenger boy is shown delivering a new batch to the stack of 2,000 letters received in one day. An operation stopped the hiccoughs, at least temporarily.

CABARETS AND BARS SPROUT AS START OF PANAMA DAM NEARS

Panama City.—(AP) Down Las Cruces trail, over which the jungle has drawn a matted, twisted curtain since pirates passed that way nearly three centuries ago, things are on the up and up.

Along the route where Morgan and his lusty buccaneers sweated and swore and started on their way to assault Old Panama in 1671, bars and cabarets are springing up, harbingers of work to begin on the $15,000,000 Madden dam, project designed to regulate the water in Gatun Lake, water supply of the Panama Canal.

The United States government will let a construction contract, probably in November, for the middle of December, when the rains have ceased, a thousand men are expected to be at work on the site near abutment.

Managua is outside the Canal Zone, and the dam will be built through an agreement between the Panama and United States governments.

The site lies east of the Panama Canal and some 25 miles from Balboa and the Pacific entrance to the waterway.

Across the top of the dam will run the highway which eventually will connect the Pacific and Atlantic seaboards.

TOWNSHIP BUREAU ELECTS OFFICERS

INTERESTING SESSIONS HELD IN TWO TOWNSHIPS

At a meeting of the Union Township Farm Bureau folks Tuesday evening at Elber school a program of unusual interest was presented consisting of music and two plays by the 4-H Club members of the township. Mr. Corliss P. Becker, organization director of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation for this district gave a talk on the organization of the Farm Bureau and its accomplishments particularly in relation to taxation and legislative accomplishments.

Officers elected for the coming year were: A. C. McCoy, Chairman, Corwin Carr, Vice-Chairman, J. K. Baughn, Secretary.

On Wednesday evening, Concord Township Farm Bureau members met at Stanton school house for their annual township meeting. Officers elected for the new year were: Chairman Ralph Nisley, Vice Chairman Homer Stewart and Secretary, Morris Sollars.

Reports were given by W. E. Sollars on the state annual Farm Bureau Federation meeting and by Virginia Davis on the 4-H Club Congress which she attended as a delegate from Fayette County last month.

Concord Township members at their meeting reaffirmed the position of the county and state Farm Bureau attitude regarding the Ohio Service and Tax Relief Association. None of the members present had seen or heard of any retraction of any statements which had ever been made by either county or state Farm Bureau officials. It was stated. Some of the farmers present had been approached by members of the Ohio Service and Tax Relief Association officials had declined to become members, they said.

Two more township Farm Bureaus will hold meetings this week and elect officers for the coming year, including a meeting of Marion Township Farm Bureau folks Thursday evening and a meeting of Perry Township Farm Bureau folks Friday evening.

New Lexington, O.—(AP) Saying he had been asked by officials of state penal institutions to take such action wherever possible to relieve overcrowding, Judge T. D. Price released on probation six men indicted for burglary and forgery.

How Large Is An Atom? Billion In Single Inch

Washington.—(AP) Two startling answers to question, "How small is an atom?" are reported by the Bureau of Standards.

One billion atoms, laid end to end, would measure about one inch, the bureau says.

If all the atoms in a tin of ball bearings were turned into tennis balls they would cover the United States several hundred feet deep.

FOUR CHILDREN SUFFER WITH FEVER

Attorneys for Creditors Balked by Refusal to Probate Will Pittsburgh, Dec. 5.—(AP) Belief was expressed today by attorney O. K. Eaton, representing some creditors of the late Ira H. Bassett, business man-evangelist, that fabulous wealth, perhaps in bonds, was sent to Memphis, Tenn., by Bassett, approximately $1,500,000 is due to the creditors, it is claimed.

Lending credence to this theory was Attorney Howard H. Montgomery of counsel for the widow, whose daughter, Mrs. Genevieve H. Marks, is contesting probate of the Bassett will on the ground he be revoked it.

"We have perhaps a half dozen leads, but nothing can be done yet, until we know if the will is to be accepted for probate," Montgomery said.

Eaton said reports reached him that Bassett, whose father and brother reside in Mansfield, O., made the shipments to a friend but it is not known how the amounts involved were handled.

Bassett is supposed to have made shipments of assets, probably in bonds, to points in Tennessee, and we understand it was Memphis," Eaton asserted. "This is being investigated. Other leads also are being inquired into. If any property is recovered, it is true that distribution must be made through the orphan's court regardless of the fact that Bassett was never discharged from bankruptcy."

Early, Means Now

Avoidance of eleventh-hour crowds is not the only bounty paid the early shopper. As the objective is to buy the article that gives giver and recipient the maximum of satisfaction and as Christmas stocks windle rapidly, it is essential that Christmas shopping be completed at the earliest date possible.

Scattering happiness far and wide is the purpose of the custom of exchanging Christmas gifts, and it behooves each one to derive the maximum amount of happiness from his or her Christmas shopping. The tried and true recipe is shop early.

Merchants and business men of Washington C. H. have, without exception, made their usual preparations for the holiday shoppers and buyers. These preparations have all been made on the same scale of excellence that distinguishes them and makes them famous, among merchants in both large and small communities.

The stocks of goods provided by local merchants are complete in all ranges, style, quality, quantity and price. The desires of all classes of buyers has been anticipated and provided for. No matter what the buying public may want, no matter how much it is desired to spend nor how little, Washington merchants can meet the demand.

In addition to their own places of business, progressive merchants of Washington C. H. have made arrangements for a more elaborate Christmas display in the streets than ever before. The city, as such, by combination of effort on the part of public spirited citizens, is to take on more of the holiday attire. Decorations by day and lights by night are to usher in and be a part of the holiday season.

It will be worth while, to all, to come to Washington C. H., this holiday season. Worth coming for the elections and prices offered, the quantity and quality of goods from which to choose and the cheery, wholesome atmosphere that will prevail.

Washington merchants are carrying their catalogues to you in this newspaper in order to aid you, lead their messages and learn how well you can do by buying in Washington and what a great aid those advertisements are to those who are seeking satisfaction for their Christmas desires.

Christmas comes but once a year and this is Christmas time. Let's make the most of us. We have so much cause to be happy.

Evolution of Literature

Back in nineteen hundred and two Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch was a well-known literary figure. He lived in a simple, homely story. There was something refreshing about her. And when The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come left home in nineteen hundred and four with only his dog to trail him across the mountains he had a wet-eyed audience. That same wonderful influence went along the Trail of the Lonesome Line when June went back to remember her lost romance.

Both were simple. They dealt with emotions that hadn't acquired a veneer of sophistication. Life was not complex in those tales. For the most part books were erected on love and sacrifice and honor.

But another influence crept in just before nineteen fifteen. Industry was growing larger. It was fast becoming a predominating force in American social life. And since literature follows life, it became the skeleton of fiction plots as well.

Booth Tarkington used it in The Turmoil. Smoky of American cities were as interesting as the drama of love over which two young people fought on a more or less industrial basis.

And then suddenly literature wasn't afraid to look at the hidden side of life. It decided not only to talk about the things that people do, and their consequences, but to give the reasons for the actions.

Instead of telling a story about a certain group of people it chose cross-sections of life itself. It had less to teach.

Main Street, Elmer Gantry, If Winter Comes, So on. Best sellers had outgrown their growing pains. They weren't afraid to talk about the symptoms of life.

CHARITY PLAN BRING THREAT OF A PROBE

Couzens Doesn't Like Compelling Federal Em- ployees to Give Spe- cific Amounts

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Washington, Dec. 3.—The well-known system of raising money for charity by voluntary subscriptions, secured through the medium of key individuals who are in a position to make their displeasure felt in a fashion the average worker cannot afford to disregard, if volunteers are reluctant or negligent, has just suffered a severe shock in Washington.

That is to say, an attempt was made to apply it to Uncle Sam's employees, whereupon Senator James Couzens of Michigan announced that, if so, there will be a congressional investigation.

Of course, the senator explains, he approves of charity (though regretful that so much of it is necessary this winter) and has nothing but words of commendation for those by whom it is volunteered, he wishes merely to be assured that it really is voluntary.

In the case of some persons on the federal payroll undoubtedly it is.

President Hoover, as an illustration, has stated that, to set an example for government workers generally, he himself will donate one day's remuneration to the capital's Community Chest for the months of January, February and March, a total of $616.41.

Senator Couzens agrees that this gift, beyond question, is voluntary. He is not so certain as to quite all the rest.

Indeed, what elicited his investigatorial threat was complaint which has reached him, from sources nearer the foot of the official ladder, that $616.41 puts nothing like so serious a crimp into Mr. Hoover's $75,000 per annum (not to mention that he is a rich man besides) as $15.41 puts into a departmental clerk's $1,875, even though the proportions are the same.

It is true, if a departmental clerk on a $1,875 salary and plenty of them manage to get along on that, without any additional private income, either can see his way clear to contributing a day's pay in January, another in February and a third in March to the Washington Community Chest, the Michigan senator does not dispute his right to contribute it.

His attention was attracted, however, by a published remark of Engineer J. B. Gordon of the District of Columbia (prominently identified with Community Chest activities) to the effect that any one failing to make his voluntary contribution at the prescribed rate hereafter will be a "marked man."

Civil Service Commissioner Thomas E. Campbell, who originally hit on the three-day voluntary contribution idea, expresses surprise, to be sure, that Senator Couzens should interpret this casual observation by Engineer Gordon as implying any thought of coercion, since the intrinsic beauty of the whole concept lies in its absolutely voluntary character. Nevertheless, the senator wants an investigation.

BISHOP BROWN ILL

Stricken with a heart attack, Bishop William Montgomery Brown has been in a serious condition at his home in Gallon, O. The bishop, who is 77, was expelled from the Protestant Episcopal church seven years ago when convicted of heresy. He was later made a bishop by another denomination.

Mr. Campbell for devising the 3-day plan, perhaps it is fair to recognize that the initial suggestion of affording the rank and file of the government's humblest employees an opportunity to join the higher-bracketed fraternity in relief of unemployment distress came from Chairman Walter S. Gifford of President Hoover's committee on the winter's emergency.

Chairman Gifford's recommendation, had it proved possible to adopt it literally, would have enabled the government workers, indeed, to contribute even more liberally than the three-day program contemplates—unless Senator Couzens' interference drives it on the rocks.

Commissioner Campbell's scheme after all, is limited to a mere bagatelle of a day's pay monthly for three months.

Chairman Gifford proposed that the workers be given a chance to make a genuinely worthwhile sacrifice. He urged that each worker (the small fry naturally; not those in the upper brackets) surrender his job at least one, and preferably two, days weekly to an otherwise unemployed alternate until times improve.

That the workers themselves did not take all enthusiastically to this notion would not necessarily have been a fatal objection to it (means probably could have been found to persuade them to acquiesce in it voluntarily) but Comptroller General J. R. McClure took exception to it, pointing out that it was against the law.

It had other drawbacks also—was described by one critic, in fact, as "impractical and asinine," which was no way to refer to an idea hatched by the president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company. Suffice it to say that Comptroller McClure was right; it was against the law.

Commissioner Campbell then came forward with his substitute, and now Senator Couzens is threatening to knock that into a cocked hat.

This not only is bad for the system of blackjacking government employees into voluntarily subscribing more than they can afford to charity; it may tend to make folk who are not in the government service balky, too.

SWALLOWS METAL

Earl Lanford, Charlotte, N. C., businessman, wants to keep on living so every day he swallows a heavy one-inch metal ball. Years ago Lanford was told he was starving to death because his lower esophagus had closed. The lead ball, tied to the string shown in Lanford's mouth, opens the esophagus and permits food to pass into Lanford's stomach. At the end of each day he pulls the lead out.

Poetry For Today

A DRYAD
Like to an elm, with gesture undemanding,
Taking contentedly her distaff's dote
From a regardless sun; quite tranquil standing,
Or thrilling of some gold-stoled oriole
Summoned his suite to lend her crooked arms gladness;
Or bearing unresentfully the theft
When Winter, ruthless in his great white madness,
Let her of all sun-span grab bereft.

She was like that—with no demanding gesture—
And glad—so glad when gold-winged things would fly
To her for homing. And when sun-woo'd venture
Was snatched by frozen fingers, made no cry.
But stood in starkest beauty—proud and still Like some slim elm against a white-shaw'd hill.
—Lewis Colwell, in the New York Times.

In Ohio History High Spots

Once, when Thomas Woodrow, maternal grandfather of Woodrow Wilson was pastor of Hoge Presbyterian church in Columbus, he visited the south and was a guest of Rev. Joseph R. Wilson, the father of Woodrow, at his charge in Augusta, Ga., and preached one Sunday in his pulpit. Mr. Woodrow was a small man, brim full of energy and very demonstrative in manner, especially in the pulpit. He held the Hoge church pulpit many years, and made it a strong congregation.

On this occasion he found after reaching the church that he had left his spectacles and as he was almost helpless without them, Mr. Wilson attempted to help him out by borrowing a pair from the congregation and asked all those present who used spectacles and were willing to loan them to Mr. Woodrow, to send them forward for trial so that he might from the entire lot be able to pick out a pair that would answer fairly well.

From a front pew young Woodrow Wilson, then a boy of ten or twelve years, viewed this unusual incident at the pulpit, and was impressed by the wholly unceremonious performance, as pair after pair were tried on by the visiting minister, which sotto voce comment between the two preachers as to the relative degree of satisfaction that they gave.

But when a pair was finally selected and the sermon was started, developments came that tended to fix the incident still more firmly in his memory, for the pair of spectacles finally selected, did not fit his father's small head, and when he began to shake his head in emphasis to his words, they would slip down toward the end of his nose, and the boy was engrossed with thought of the danger that they might fall and break—which, however, did not actually happen, the speaker always catching them just in time—and he admitted that he remembered nothing else of the sermon, when he told the story as he often did with undiminished pleasure as the years wore on.

LAND PLANE SPEED RECORD MISSED DESPITE FACT THAT OLD RECORD BETTERED

Detroit, Dec. 3.—(P)—Lowell R. Bayles' apparent world land plane speed record, made Tuesday, was declared invalid by Ray Cooper, official observer for the Federation Aeronautique Internationale.

An apparent camera failure left only an incomplete record of the Springfield, Mass., flier's four swoops over the three kilometer course at an average speed of 284.72 miles an hour, Cooper said, and it would not even be submitted to the federation for confirmation. The existing record is 278.48 miles an hour, established in 1924 by Warrant Officer Bonnet, of France.

TO STOP A COUGH THAT HANGS ON

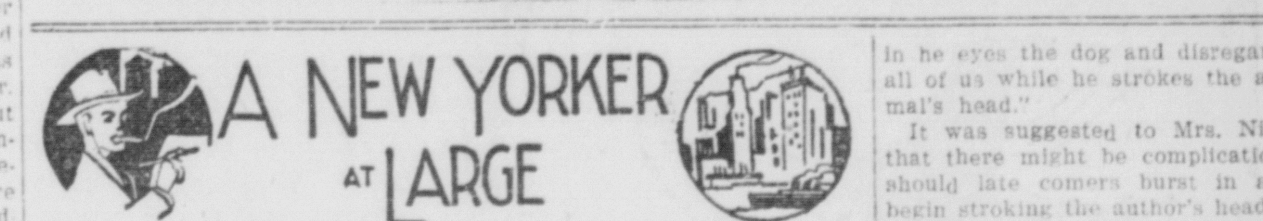

Just Do This:

Take a teaspoonful of Bronchuline Emulsion. Never mind the taste nor the smell—it's not half as bad as you think it is going to be.

If your cough hasn't stopped, take another dose in three or four hours. Two doses is usually enough to kill the most stubborn, hang-on cough. A bottle surely does it or you get your money back.

Of course if you want a sweet, sugary sedative (that upsets your stomach and may give you the drug habit) Bronchuline Emulsion is not the cough medicine for you. Bronchuline contains no chloroform, no narcotics, no habit-forming drugs of any kind.

But it certainly kills a cough! No doubt about it. Or Finley's Corner Drug Store and all other good druggists guarantee to give you money back.—Adv.

BY WILLIAM GAINES HEARD BOW BELLS

NEW YORK—Just imagine! There's a successful English author who wants to become an American citizen!

At one of those tealess teas in her honor I asked Christine Jope-Slade about her extraordinary ambition.

America, it seems, is "so energizing," while England has become "so depressing."

But another of her reasons which interested me more was:

"Women are accepted as individuals here. If they have something to say, the men, as well as the other women, will listen."

"Women have been subdued for so long in England. One feels it might be an impropriety for her to speak her mind in an assembly."

(Oh, yes, but you must remember, Lady Astor is an American girl.)

"Have you any notion that women dominate the men over here?" I asked her.

"No, it's not that. Here you have the rule of brain instead of the rule of sex. Intelligence is not frowned upon if it happens to be the possession of a woman."

"Just look about this party. You don't see any of the smart women trembling in a corner, do you?"

I looked about and saw such persons as Blair Niles and Julia Peterkin giving vent to ideas with feminine emphasis, and such men as Julian Street and Harvey Ferguson didn't seem to be trying to subdue them, whether they would have liked to or not.

It was just then that Blair Niles, the world wandering writer, entered a complaint about dogs at parties for celebrities.

A big white bulldog had the center of the floor, and its air of boredom was more convincing than that of any sophisticated prelate. It politely tolerated the caresses of the famous, but didn't encourage them.

"How can you expect writers to get any attention in competition with dogs?" Mrs. Niles wanted to know. "As soon as any one comes

REPRESENTATIVE BYRNS IS LIKELY TO BE BUDGET DIRECTOR

Organization of House by Democrats First Step Observers Point Out

Washington, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Democratic representative Joe Byrns, of Tennessee, who pities the boy or girl who has no opportunity to grow up in the country, expects soon to be running the August appropriations committee in a "Folksey" way.

"I'll have nobody at the door to stop anybody from coming in," said Byrns today. "I'm glad to see everybody who wants to see me."

On that principle, he had long predicted the political career which will bring him, if the Democrats organize the House, the all important job of spending the country's money—$5,243,000,000 last year, somewhat less this session if economy plans bear fruit.

Byrns has been ranking member of the appropriations committee ever since the republicans assumed House control in 1919. For eight years before that he belonged—and thus got to watch all the billions crossing the counter during the world war.

Speaking in staggering sums never makes Joe Byrns forget that he was once a barefoot boy on the hills of Tennessee.

He is humorous and kindly. Keen twinkling brown eyes look through beetling brows. He is long and thin. He plays with a knife on his watch chain as he talks the language that every body understands.

ONLY ONE MEAL A DAY FOR DRY VIOLATORS

Gering, Neb.—(AP)—The dinner bell will ring out but once ever 24 hours for liquor law violators confined in the county jail here.

This method of dealing with prohibition violators was introduced by County Judge C. O. Lyda and two men are now serving 30 day sentences with the one-meal-a-day penalty attached.

APPOINTMENTS MADE

Columbus, O.—(AP)—Governor White Wednesday re-appointed R. D. Williamson, Republican of Xenia and Mrs. W. J. Pontius, Democrat of Canton, to the State Board of Agriculture. The appointments, for five-year terms, are effective as of October 16.

JURY CAN'T AGREE

ALLEGED BIG SHOT OF AUTO THIEVES GETS ANOTHER TRIAL NEXT YEAR

Cleveland, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Wayne E. Carpenter of Canton alleged financial power of a Detroit-Canton auto theft ring, will be tried a second time after January 1 on charges of violating the federal auto law.

A federal court jury which heard his case failed to reach a verdict and was discharged Tuesday by Judge Samuel H. West. The court also raised Carpenter's bond from $2,500 to $5,000 and ordered him held in jail pending posting of the bond.

Thomas McVey, the fifth and last member of the alleged ring to be brought to trial, was acquitted on a directed verdict ordered by Judge West. The government prior to the trial dismissed transporting charges against McVey and the court ruled him not guilty of other counts alleging concealment and storage of a stolen vehicle. His trial started after Carpenter's case went to jury.

Carpenter, secretary of the United Acceptance Corporation of Canton, was charged with receiving, concealing and storing a stolen automobile. He testified yesterday that he acted in good faith and had been depending on the good business reputation of the men with whom he dealt in automobile transactions.

Three others indicted in connection with the reputed ring have been convicted.

SALARIES ARE CUT

CELESTIAL OFFICIALS HIT BY ECONOMY PROGRAM TO SAVE $5,214

Cleveland, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Salaries ranging from 10 to 12½ per cent and effecting a saving next year of $5,214, were approved by the East Cleveland City Commission for 10 department heads.

The reductions were recommended by City Manager Charles A. Curran, who is among those affected. Salaries of $3,600 to $4,449 will be slashed by 10 per cent January 1, and those of $4,500 and over will be decreased 12½ per cent.

Curran and City Manager H. H. Canfield, of Cleveland Heights, also denied reports they had been offered the post of city manager of Springfield, O.

SOVIET STUDENTS STUDY AMERICAN ENGINEERING AT BEST COLLEGES HERE

But They Have Strict Orders From Home Not to Discuss Communism; Protected From Propagandists.

Russian engineering students who are studying at various American engineering colleges.

Russian engineering students who are studying at various American engineering colleges.

By JOSEPH S. WARD, JR.

Boston.—Soviet students at Harvard and Massachusetts Tech? Are two of America's "soundest" institutions allowing Red propagandists to slide surreptitiously into classrooms and dormitories?

The answer is "yes," not only at Harvard and Massachusetts Tech but also at Cornell, Columbia, Lehigh, Wisconsin, Purdue, Colorado School of Mines and Carnegie Institute where a group of young Russian engineers, chosen in competitive examination, will study.

Reporters who sought strange looking Soviet students at Harvard and M. I. T. found instead 30 bare-headed youths with the air and attitude of any well-fed young men who might be entering college from any part of the United States.

Fear To Talk

"That's the way they looked and the way they talked—that's another surprise. Instead of being eager for all comers to listen to the gospel of Communism, these students are almost afraid to open their mouths for fear something they say will be interpreted as Soviet propaganda."

There were 53 Russian students in all shipped over here by the Soviet government to acquire the best that leading engineering schools of capitalist America have to offer. They arrived in New York in care of the Amtorg Trading Corporation and within a few days, Cambridge had two-fifths of them.

The studies they are following at Harvard and Tech range from ship-building to railroading. Some will study electrical engineering, some will learn to build machines that the Soviet now so expensively imports from industrial America.

Status Is Dangerous

They came to the United States on students' certificates which are revocable for any cause or for no cause at all by the American government. Their status is precarious and B. E. Skvirsky, representative in Washington of the Amtorg, was careful to impress Harvard and Tech officials that the boys should be protected from the exploitation of propagandists.

The officials remembered and the students themselves were as laden with instructions as a new secretary of embassy going to a foreign post. They were told to keep still, not to talk about Russia to anybody, to give no interviews and to have no talks with newspapermen. Opinions about the United States and Russia are not to be voiced. And to finish the instructions, they were reminded that it was safest to say nothing at all.

Russia in Transition

An American Newspaperman Sees Russia As It is Today

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT

Moscow, U. S. S. R., Dec. 2.—One of the most persistent canards about Soviet Russia is the alleged nationalization of women shortly after the revolution. The story was sheer anti-Bolshevik propaganda and its only basis was an announcement in Saratov, purportedly issued by an anarchist group, proposing such a step. The anarchists denounced the statement as a forgery and the Bolsheviks denied they had ever contemplated establishing such a system. Yet the canard continues and many ignorant people think that Russian women are nationalized to this day.

After the revolution, Russia, like all countries that had been in the war, loosened moral restraints. As in England and Germany, and to a somewhat less degree in the United States, because we had not been in the war so long, many people took a "what's the use" attitude. Russia suffered more than any other nation from the war, and the excesses probably were more widespread.

The old conventions were "bourgeois" and the new freedom was a gift of the Bolshevik regime. In the United States we called it the "jazz era." In England the young people laughed at the old restraints as "pre-war." The writer doesn't know whether the Germans had a name for it, but there were similar conditions in Germany and Austria in 1920 to 1923. In Russia today such excesses are condemned as "counter-revolutionary," and detrimental to progress.

Simple Marriage Laws
The Soviet liberalization of marriage and divorce laws has shocked many Americans. Those laws follow closely the Norwegian laws and adhere to a well-defined conception of marital relations. It is that a state cannot make or break a marriage; it can only register the fact that a marriage has been made or broken. A church service, while not forbidden, has no legal significance.

A woman textile worker, member of a "shock brigade."

In some respects the Russian laws are stricter than many state laws in the United States. At the registry office the bride and bridegroom must state in writing that they are over 18 years old; are entering the union voluntarily; that there are no legal bars to their marriage, and that each party is informed as to the health of the other. False statements are punishable by law. Thus, while there is no Soviet law against bigamy, a bigamist would be prosecuted for having made a false statement as though the union had been registered. The mother is not an outcast, a "fallen woman."

The Russians are neither afraid of sex questions nor preoccupied with them. They are earthy and not prurient. They are a simple, vital, unrefined people, and their attitude is reflected in the Soviet marriage and divorce laws. The Scandinavian countries with a similar people enacted similar laws. The tendency in England and the United States is toward greater liberality in marriages and divorces, to conform to modern conditions. Even churchmen are now advocating what would have been rank heresy 15 years ago.

The Soviet marriage laws were revised and codified in 1927. Before the government acted, thousands of mass meetings, mostly attended by women, were held for months throughout the union. The results of these discussions were formulated into the present laws. This is in striking contrast to the natives behind the Nevada and Arkansas laws, which were designed to lure hotel guests to those states. It will be recalled that one patriotic Nevada legislator proposed that the state should grant "mid-order" divorces—for a fee.

One of the influences restraining marriages and divorces in Russia has been the acute housing shortage and the Soviet law that a person cannot be dispossessed of his lodging without due process of law.

The swain who does not wish to bring his bride into a room already quartering two or three other persons will have a hard time finding a room of his own. Conversely, a disappointed spouse will find a long time about getting a divorce before he or she has another lodging.

GDD COMPLICATIONS

The housing situation brings about many curious situations. When the writer was in Vitebsk, White Russia, a former Russian army officer and his wife were divorced. Their friends took it as a matter of course when they continued to live in the same room. The man had been unable to find other lodgings.

At the end of three months they were remarried, and when the writer returned to Vitebsk last year he learned they had lived happily thereafter.

In Moscow this year Americans told of a divorced Russian woman whose husband refused to leave the one-room lodging. She remarried and the new husband proceeded to throw out the old husband. The former husband appealed to the committee, who upheld his right to remain in the room. At present the three people are living together, making the best of a trying situation.

The liberality of the marriage and divorce laws has not erased the age-old human emotions of love and jealousy. The writer's Russian guide recounted how a young Russian, returning from a journey, was given positive proof that his wife had had an affair with another man. He murdered his wife with an ax, was sentenced to prison by a Soviet court and released in three months. The guide had not heard of the American "unwritten law" and was interested to learn that under the American code of honor the wrong person had been murdered. He said that the penalty probably would have been more severe if the husband had killed the lover.

Reorganization Is All Set for Association as Parley Progresses

REVIVE CENTRAL LOOP

Three Ohio Teams Slated for Circuit in 1932

By PAUL MICKELSON
West Baden, Ind., Dec. 3.—(AP)—"Rebels" of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, parent body of America's 16 existing minor leagues, apparently have won the battle of West Baden.

Backed by an overwhelming majority, they were in full charge of the thirtieth annual convention today and ready to complete their plans for a drastic reorganization of the association—a reorganization which would oust the present administration body and replace it with a committee of five club owners with absolute powers of management and control.

The showdown of their fight was definitely set for today, and not one member of the old regime headed by President Mike Sexton, had any hopes of retaining his powers. Only because some "rebel-minded" owners wanted to get more information about the reorganization plan, was the movement postponed from yesterday.

Under the plan, Sexton, president for 22 years, would be retired with a full year's salary, and the committee, three members from the Class AA League and the other two from Class B and D leagues, placed in full charge for a year, during which it would make recommendations.

The committee would be directed to create a central purchasing agency for all minor league supplies, and to map campaigns to give minor league baseball a wider appeal.

As the meeting neared the end today only one major league deal had been announced—the sale of third baseman Andy High of the Cincinnati Reds.

As the minor leaguers met in general or separate conference, they turned out several developments, including:

The reorganization of the Central League, which will be operated as a six or eight club circuit next season with South Bend, Ind., Fort Wayne, Ind., Dayton, Canton, and Akron, O., and Erie, Pa. South Bend and Akron are the new members while two more were expected to be announced today.

Purchase of Harry Taylor, first baseman of the Seattle Club of the Pacific Coast League, by the Chicago Cubs at a reported price of $25,000.

SPORTS

By Sords CHARITY FOOTBALL A FLOP; DOOM OF POST-SEASON GAME SEEN AS POSSIBLE OUTCOME

Michigan Sets New National Defensive Record—Development of Pass as Game Winner Features Season.

The Big Ten charity football games, played by all 10 Western Conference teams as authorized by the conference last September, are now a thing of the past. Out of all the games, a scant $154,000 has been raised for use in unemployment relief. This represents only about $15,000 per team and certainly does not begin to approach the expectations of those who planned the games in so sanguine a mood in early autumn.

Why this meager result, when the games were played in the name of charity?

Evidently the public is not greatly interested in this form of charity or games based on a charity appeal do not attract.

In my opinion, results from the 1931 conference charity games will do much to end the agitation for such games in the future unless (as is too much to expect), public opinion takes a sudden about-face.

In tying for first place in the Big Ten this season, Michigan has made a most unusual defensive record. In her last six games with major opponents, Michigan has made 100 points and held opponents scoreless. These opponents included Illinois, Princeton, Indiana, Michigan State, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

Furthermore, four of these opponents (Illinois, Princeton, Minnesota and Wisconsin) did not make a single first down by carrying the ball in four downs, and, in fact, Princeton was unable to make a first down by any method.

I do not think this defensive record has ever been equaled in football. Michigan's tie for the championship is the sixth year in the past 10 in which she has either won first place in undisputed fashion or else been tied for this honor.

In surveying the work of football teams during the season now over, one cannot help but be impressed with the scoring power of the forward pass and the change it has made in the game since its introduction in 1906. Passing, like punting, plays an important part in almost every football game, especially where teams are more or less evenly matched.

LAST TRIBUTE PAID TO DEAD GRID PLAYER

CORNELIUS MURPHY JR.

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—While Fordham University paid its last tribute today to Cornelius Murphy, Jr., 21-year-old football star who died yesterday of injuries suffered in a game against Bucknell ten days ago, the sport loving public wondered what would be the result of the unusual number of gridiron fatalities during the 1931 season.

Murphy's death was the thirty-first recorded this season. In many quarters it was believed important steps would be taken to check the toll of football.

Coaches, officials, ex-players and others connected with football rallied to the support of the game and pointed out that few players had been killed or even seriously injured in major college games. Of the 31 deaths recorded so far only four have occurred at major colleges, one at a small college and one at a normal school. Others were at high schools or in "sand lot" games.

Fordham's farewell to Murphy, took place today when high requiem mass was held.

Later today the body, accompanied by the youth's father, two sisters and a brother, was to be taken back home to Greenfield, Mass., for burial probably Saturday.

Count For Game Taken In Ohio Is Next Year's Plan

Columbus, O., Dec. 2.—(AP)—Tally cards on which hunters and trappers will be asked to note the number of each kind of game taken will be affixed to licenses issued by the State Conservation Department next year.

Persons receiving licenses will be asked to fill out the tallies and return them to the department. The data so obtained will be used as a guide to determine the kill of each species in the 88 counties of the state, and will assist the conservation commissioner, the conservation council and state legislature in drafting suitable orders and legislation for adequate protection.

A beginning of such work was made this year. Tally cards distributed by the department sought information as to the game seen and game killed in the field. Similar cards used by the Michigan department disclosed that only one out of nine ruffed grouse flushed was killed in that state in 1930.

BIG TEN MEET IN CHICAGO FRIDAY

Shakeups Possible When Faculty Committees Get Together

SCHEDULE TO BE MADE

Problem of Decrease in Attendance to Come Up

By WILLIAM WEEKES

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Western Conference athletic directors and coaches will gather here tomorrow for their annual winter meeting, to arrange schedules and to talk about such things as charity contests and an almost described as falling of the gate receipts.

While the directors and coaches are holding their various meetings, the faculty committee on athletics will get together, probably in secret, for their annual session.

Football schedules for 1932 are ready and need only to be approved, but the annual indoor and outdoor track and field championship dates must be selected and awarded.

Crowds last fall were "off" to an alarming extent and retrenchments may cause curtailment of schedules, especially in minor sports.

State Senator Bernard Gettelman of Milwaukee, has figured out that the University of Wisconsin finished the football season with an athletic department deficit of more than $70,000. Their program probably will be trimmed.

There may also be announcements of changes in football coaches, for reports persist that Bernie Bierman, now at Tulane, will succeed Fritz Crisler at Minnesota, and that Glenn Thistlethwaite, will not be at Wisconsin a year hence.

SPORT SLANTS

ALAN GOULD ASSOCIATED PRESS, SPORTS EDITOR

A football scout, after touring the south, has given the high spots on some of Dixie's teams. It may be the only chance these footballers will have to see themselves as others see them. The scout reports:

"Tulane has a real team and the best coached outfit I ever saw. Ted Cox, who is six feet four and weighs 250 pounds in addition to being red-headed is a great line coach. Lester Lautenschlaeger is the backfield coach and a wonder. Bernie Bierman, who was with Clark Shaughnessy at Tulane in 1924, is the head coach and a real student of football.

"The coaches are not all, though for Monk Simmons, the trainer and Dr. Smith, the athletic director, also do their work well. I don't know any team with better coaching and general direction.

"Haynes, the left end, and red-head, sat on the bench four years. He weighs 185 pounds, is fast and just one of the best ends in the south. Decoligny, the left tackle, is six, two, weighs 190, does 14.3 in the high hurdles; Schroeder, left guard, also sat on the bench two years and then came through; Lodrigues is a good center—very good. In the Georgia Tech game he intercepted a pass and outran the Tech backs 50 yards for a touchdown.

"At right guard is a mammoth fellow, Scenfile, who used to play with Marchmont Schwartz at St. Stanislaus, weighs 220 pounds. A right tackle they use a great big fellow, Bankston, six, two, weighs about 215 pounds, and at right end, Dalrymple, a tough hombr if there ever was one, six feet, 175 and fast as lightning.

"Dalrymple played four years at Ouachita college, Arkansas, before he went to Tulane, but it is O. K. because Ouachita was then a junior college, although it used to beat Mississippi A. & M. now and then.

BACKFIELD GREAT

"The backfield is a dream. Felt, fast as a streak, six feet and weighs 185 at fullback; at quarterback is Reg Dawson, never carries the ball, but wonderful blocker, punter, and perfect defensive back; Zimmerman, the left halfback who will make many All-Americans, and should, six feet tall and weighs 180, pole vaults nearly 14 feet, marvelous punter and passer, fast and shifty and a money player.

"Zimmerman is the key to the situation because when he is back and Felt is in the bucking position it is just too bad for the other team. At right half is Payne, a speed merchant, weighs 180 and so and a great blocker, used to reverse plays.

RESERVES POWERFUL

"After the first string outfit at a whole flock of men almost as good; the whole squad is 36. Let me mention a great big fullback who could make almost any team in the country, terrific punter. Another great backfield, Glover, and several good quarterbacks and halfbacks. Hodgins, Haik and others.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the worst looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salt mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine. For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get to the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out thousands of bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowel. Gas builds up in your stomach. You have thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. You often break out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these thousands of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of substitutes. See at all stores. © 1931 C. M. C.

SHOP LIGHTS TURN MOSCOW STREETS INTO 'WHITE WAY'

Moscow — (AP) — After several years of barren stores with drab, darkened windows and down-at-heard stocks Moscow's shopping center is being turned into a 'white way.'

New stores are being opened, and recent decrees, reflecting the government's recognition that it pays to advertise, have ordered that all stores must dress their windows and light them each evening.

A transformation has resulted in the main business thoroughfares, Tverskaya and Petrovka. Many shops which heretofore either failed to display their wares or heaped them in the windows in vagrant disarray now fairly glitter.

Only a few were lighted at night before; now all attract the passer-by. Even the food stores draw hundreds of window shoppers by neat piles of canned goods and produce.

As more stores are opened the number of deserted shops that darkened every block until a few months ago are decreasing. This has had the effect also of reducing the queues, long a Russian institution.

Polish Politics Boost Moral Reformer's Aims

Warsaw — (AP) — Polish moralists are getting a break from politics.

Recently 8,000 peasants met at Tarnow under the auspices of ex-Premier Witos, and took an oath not to swallow a drop of vodka nor to smoke.

They did this to keep the government from realizing any profit on its alcohol and tobacco monopolies.

NEVER DANGEROUS TO CURE ECZEMA

That's What Doctors Say

Some people have an idea that it is dangerous to try to cure eczema—that the "poison" will go through your system.

That's all wrong, doctors say. Nobody knows exactly what causes eczema, but plenty of folks know how to stop it—how to get relief that's nothing short of magic.

Eczema—tetter—salt rheum—no matter what you call it, no matter how long you've had it, nor how many things you've tried—

When it itches so it almost drives you crazy—when you think you just can't stand it another second—put some Moore's Emerald Oil on it.

If that doesn't give you—instantly—greater relief than anything you've ever tried, money back.

Don't be afraid of its hurting you or your clothes—use lots of it. And remember that Finley's Corner Drug Store and every first class druggist guarantees it—Adv.

CHAPTER 44

ARLENE was the first to see the announcement of Bruce Durand's engagement to Sybil Morse. She would be, Margaret told her. Arlene had been having the paper delivered of late because she enjoyed reading while she was drinking her cup of coffee in the mornings. Not that she ever did read the paper while drinking her coffee. She was too late for that, but she hurried away with the paper tucked under her arm and feeling quite intelligent. Everybody read the morning paper, she told Margaret.

Oddly enough on this, of all mornings, Arlene got up in time to drink a cup of coffee with Margaret and to scan the paper. She merely glanced over it unless, of course, there happened to be an exciting murder story. Then she read it avidly, turning to the back sheets for the pictures, searching through the printed sheets for more news and complaining to Margaret that they really never wrote enough about the things that were interesting.

Sometimes she read the social section. She devoured the news of society girls' debuts, and descriptions of how they were married in long flowing veils or puffywillow satin. She read rapturously of the various places whither the smart set had whisked themselves for the winter or the summer, whichever the season happened to be.

It was in search of news of this sort that Arlene saw the name "Bruce Durand" actually printed on the sheet that she had open before her. Margaret saw Arlene drop the rail that she had in her hand and grasp the paper tightly.

"What's this?" Arlene exclaimed as she went on reading, "Bruce Durand engaged to Sybil Morse!"

Margaret thought at first Arlene was making it up. She laughed.

"Trying to get a rise out of me?" Margaret asked.

"No, really," Arlene protested. "I mean it. Look!"

She held the paper up for Margaret to see. It was there all right. One couldn't miss seeing it if one looked at the society page. There was a large picture of Sybil Morse wreathed in her most ingratiating smile and the Morse family jewelry. Underneath the picture were the full details of the engagement, which it seems was being announced by Mr. and Mrs. Morse. The date of the wedding had not been set.

Margaret all but choked on the coffee which she had in her mouth. Well, this was certainly something with which to start the day out wrong.

"Wonder what Lois will say?" Arlene queried with a little sarcastic smile on her face. She was enjoying the news immensely.

Margaret was wondering the same thing. It would be terrible when Lois found it out. It was obviously a case of parental arrangement, but even so, if the parents had gone so far as to announce it in the papers they probably intended to carry it on through. Margaret didn't see how Lois had a chance.

"Better give up, honey," Margaret advised Lois that morning in the rest room after one of the other girls had shown Lois the morning paper. "I just don't see how you can get anywhere in the face of odds like that."

Lois couldn't answer her. She wanted to talk. She thought she probably would feel better if she could get everything out that she had in her mind, but her heart was full.

"What's this?" Arlene exclaimed, "Bruce Durand engaged to Sybil Morse!"

"I think it's a rotten trick to pull on anybody," Margaret asserted. "If I were Bruce I'd be more determined than ever now to marry you. But it's difficult to defy one's own people."

Lois was shaking, trying to hold back sobs that persisted in coming. Margaret patted her gently.

"Try to forget it, Lois. Honestly, you've had nothing but grief ever since you met Bruce Durand. I'm afraid I'd be tempted to put him in the back of my mind forever if I were you."

Lois straightened up. "No, Margaret," she said, "I'm going to trust him. We swore that we'd believe in each other no matter what happened and I'm going to stick to it."

Margaret shrugged her shoulders. "I don't see any harm in believing him, myself, but what chance has he when his aunt engineers his engagement for him?"

Bruce had been calling frantically. Hazel told Lois. Lois sat down at the switchboard and waited for him to call her again. Was her life to be always like that, she asked herself—waiting for him to call, wondering what he would say to her? It seemed to her that she had been doing nothing except that ever since she had known him. Love is like that. When it throws you into despair, you are able only to recall the moments or hours or weeks of pain, never the hours of happiness. You have to force yourself to remember those.

"I'll be downstairs at noon," Bruce told Lois. "I don't want to say anything over the phone. Remember what we said we were going to do, honey?"

"Yes," Lois replied.

"You will have faith in me, won't you?"

Lois was afraid of her voice. "Of course I will," she said, "except—"

Bruce broke in. "I know, honey, how you must feel, but it's all news to me, too. I didn't know anything about it until I came down this morning and some of the fellows started congratulating me." Then he remembered. "But let's talk it all over this noon," he urged.

"Imagine how I must feel," he told Lois when they were seated at the booth of the little Italian restaurant where they went when they had something especially important to discuss.

"I simply don't understand it, Bruce," Lois told him frankly.

"I don't see how Aunt Eleanor could do a thing like that," he said. "It must be terribly embarrassing to Sybil Morse, too. Heavens, why I told her just the other night that I was virtually married."

Lois looked at him adoringly. She knew now that even though things had gone terribly far, she could trust him beyond a doubt. He never would let her down again, she told herself. She knew he wouldn't. Things would come out all right.

He couldn't promise very much until he had talked with his aunt, Bruce told Lois. She would have to be patient and leave everything to him. If his aunt insisted on his carrying this thing through, then he'd simply have to leave home and he and Lois would run off and be married.

"Be married!" It sounded too grand. Lois got a distinct thrill every time she even thought about being married to Bruce Durand.

The hands of the clock moved fast when she and Bruce were together and all too soon it was time for them to go back to their respective offices. Even though the entire social world was buzzing with the news of the engagement of Bruce Durand, Lois returned to her desk with a light heart. She knew that Bruce Durand belonged to her.

JURY DISAGREEMENT ENDS MURDER TRIAL

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Falling to reach a verdict, the jury in the trial of Willard Jordan, 30, of Ashland, O., was dismissed. Jordan was tried for the fatal shooting of Patrolman Leslie Green here on Oct. 4.

Jordan, testifying in his own defense, denied he killed the officer in an attempt to escape arrest as he had been charged by the state. He said his revolver was discharged during a scuffle with another officer and that he was unaware that Green was in the vicinity. The patrolmen were questioning Jordan about the theft of automobile tires from a Bucyrus dealer.

The jury of ten men and two women deliberated the case for six hours. Prosecutor D. J. Hoskins said Jordan would be retried in January.

END PILES QUICK

No Salves—No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this city, that Finley's Corner Drug Store says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back.—Adv.

JURY OF 3 WIVES PUTS MAN IN JAIL

ONE WILLING TO FORGIVE AND TAKE HIM BACK BUT OTHERS WANT REVENGE

Chicago, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Tuesday was election day for Toni Jarecki, 37.

He lost, and as a result was sentenced by Judge Stanton to serve from 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $100.

The voting was done by three of the four wives he is alleged to have had.

After listening to the testimony, Judge Stanton asked the three wives present what they wanted done with him.

Two of the three replied: "Put him in jail."

The third said she was willing to take him back but the Judge said:

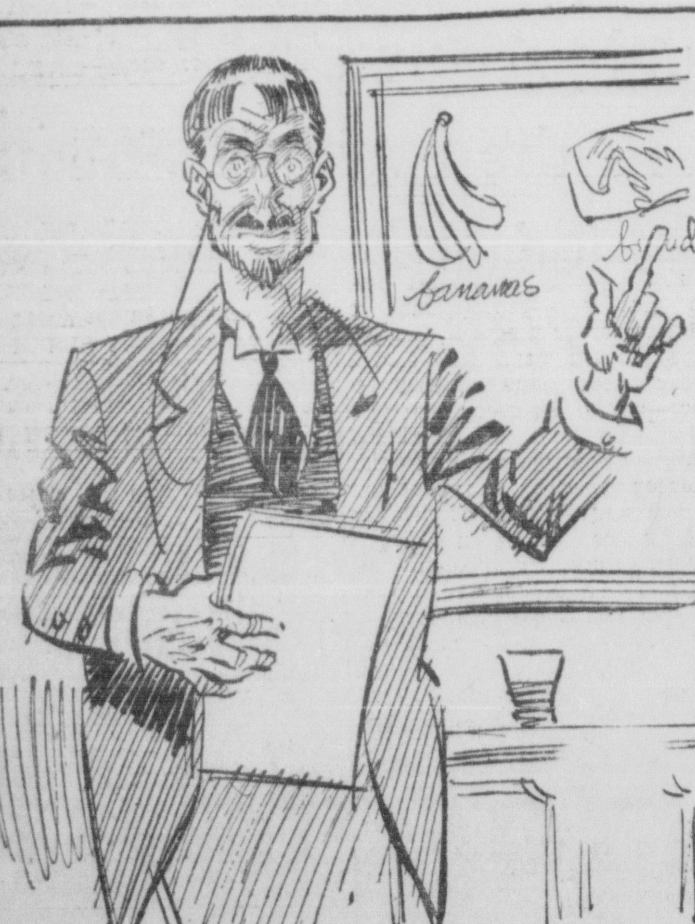

"The vote is two to one for jail and the sentence will be one year to live in the penitentiary and a $100 fine."
